

Introduction

Scottish Government has commissioned Voluntary Health Scotland (VHS) to carry out a scoping exercise to help inform the development of a national Community Link Worker programme. The research aims to identify the number and range of Community Link Worker (CLW) initiatives currently involving the third sector in Scotland.

VHS will gather intelligence from:

- The 32 local third sector interfaces (TSIs)
- Direct service providers across the third sector

Who is this survey for?

You are encouraged to complete the survey if you are a Third Sector Interface (TSI).

The survey should be completed only once by each TSI.

Definition of Community Link Working

Community link working is

- An approach (or range of approaches) for connecting people to non-medical sources of support or resources in the community which are likely to help with the health problems they are experiencing.
- Used interchangeably with other terms, such as social prescribing, signposting, supported self management, and community referral.
- Used in primary care and enables staff to draw on non-medical options to support their patients.
- Used with a number of different client groups and draws on a wide range of different community based services, including arts and cultural activities, green space, debt advice, physical activity and leisure, bibliotherapy, learning, volunteering, housing advice, benefits, employment and legal advice (Friedli et al, 2007).
- Person-centred and tailored to the individual's needs irrespective of where it is delivered.

How we will use the survey data

The data will be used to produce a report for the Scottish Government describing the range and nature of CLW programmes / services in the third sector in Scotland. Organisations may well be identified in the report as part of this.

Completing the survey
The survey asks you for information about the CLW programmes / services your TSI is involved with, and some background information about the TSI. You can describe up to five separate programmes / services or none. It should take about 45 minutes to complete. If you cannot complete every question, we would be grateful for as much information as you are able to provide.
Please complete the survey by the extended deadline of Monday 31 October 2016.
If you have any questions about the survey, contact:
Claire Stevens, Chief Officer at Voluntary Health Scotland
